

Call for Submissions: Spacepower at 300 Years

Special Edition of SFA Spacepower Magazine Commemorating America's 250th Anniversary

In recognition of the 250th anniversary of the United States in 2026, the Space Force Association invites submissions for a special edition of Spacepower Magazine exploring the future of spacepower 50 years from now, at the nation's 300th anniversary. This edition will examine how the vision, innovation, and leadership of the national security space community - particularly within the United States Space Force and Department of War - have shaped the space domain to date, and what foundations are being laid today to ensure continued success in the century ahead.

We're looking for thoughtful, forward-looking articles that connect past achievements to future possibilities. Authors are encouraged to explore the organizational, operational, technological, and geopolitical realities that may define the Space Force's role in U.S. economic and national security at America's 300th anniversary.

Selected submissions will be featured in a special commemorative print edition of Spacepower Magazine in July 2026, and in a digital edition distributed to SFA members and the broader space community. This dual-format publication will ensure contributors' ideas reach both in-person audiences and readers across the national security space enterprise.

Suggested Topics Include:

- The future of spacepower and national security space strategy
- Organization of space activities in the U.S. Government
- Space warfighting in 2076 and beyond
- The role of commercial and allied partnerships in future space operations
- Space technology trends that will define the next 50 years
- Educating and training the future space workforce
- Sustaining U.S. leadership in an increasingly contested space domain

Submission Details:

- Article length: 750-1,250 words (flexible depending on topic)
- Media: Images and/or infographics with appropriate attribution are highly encouraged
- Include: A brief author biography (2–3 sentences)
- Follow: SFA Editorial Guidelines

How to Submit:
